American Iced Coffee

Light, refreshing, and bold, American Iced Coffee is brewed hot and then chilled, poured over ice to lock in its sharp flavor. Unlike sweetened lattes or creamy frappés, it's known for being clean, simple, and energizing — a favorite for summer days and busy mornings.

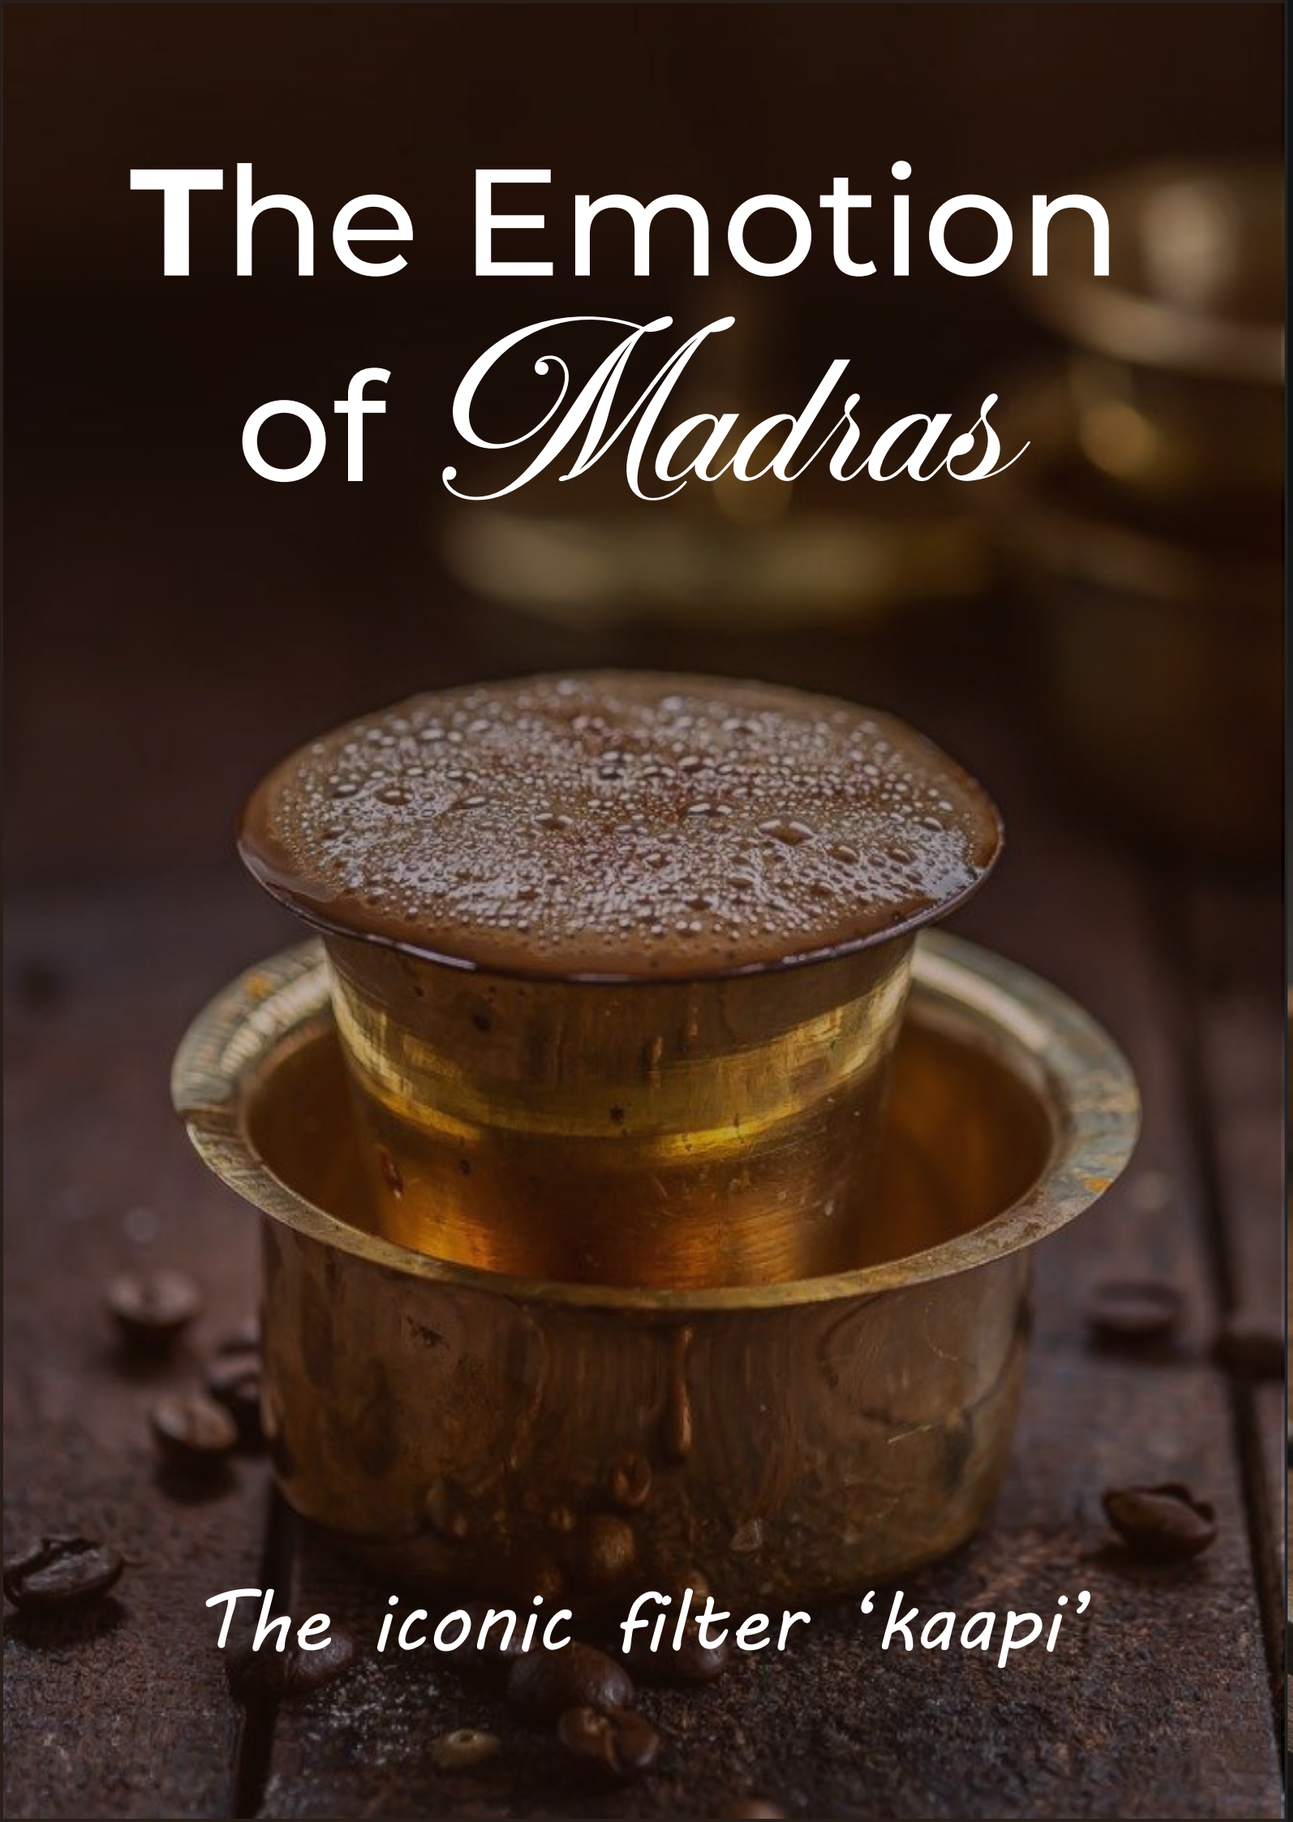

The History of coffee

Coffee's story begins over a thousand years ago in Ethiopia, where legend says a goat herder named Kaldi noticed his goats dancing with energy after eating red coffee cherries. From there, the magic bean spread to Arabia, where coffee became known as "qahwa" and was first brewed as a drink in the 15th century.

In India, coffee found a home in Chikmagalur, Karnataka, where Baba Budan, a Sufi saint, is said to have planted the first coffee seeds. Today, India is one of the world's top coffee producers, with regions like Coorg, Wayanad, and Araku Valley becoming famous for their rich, aromatic beans.

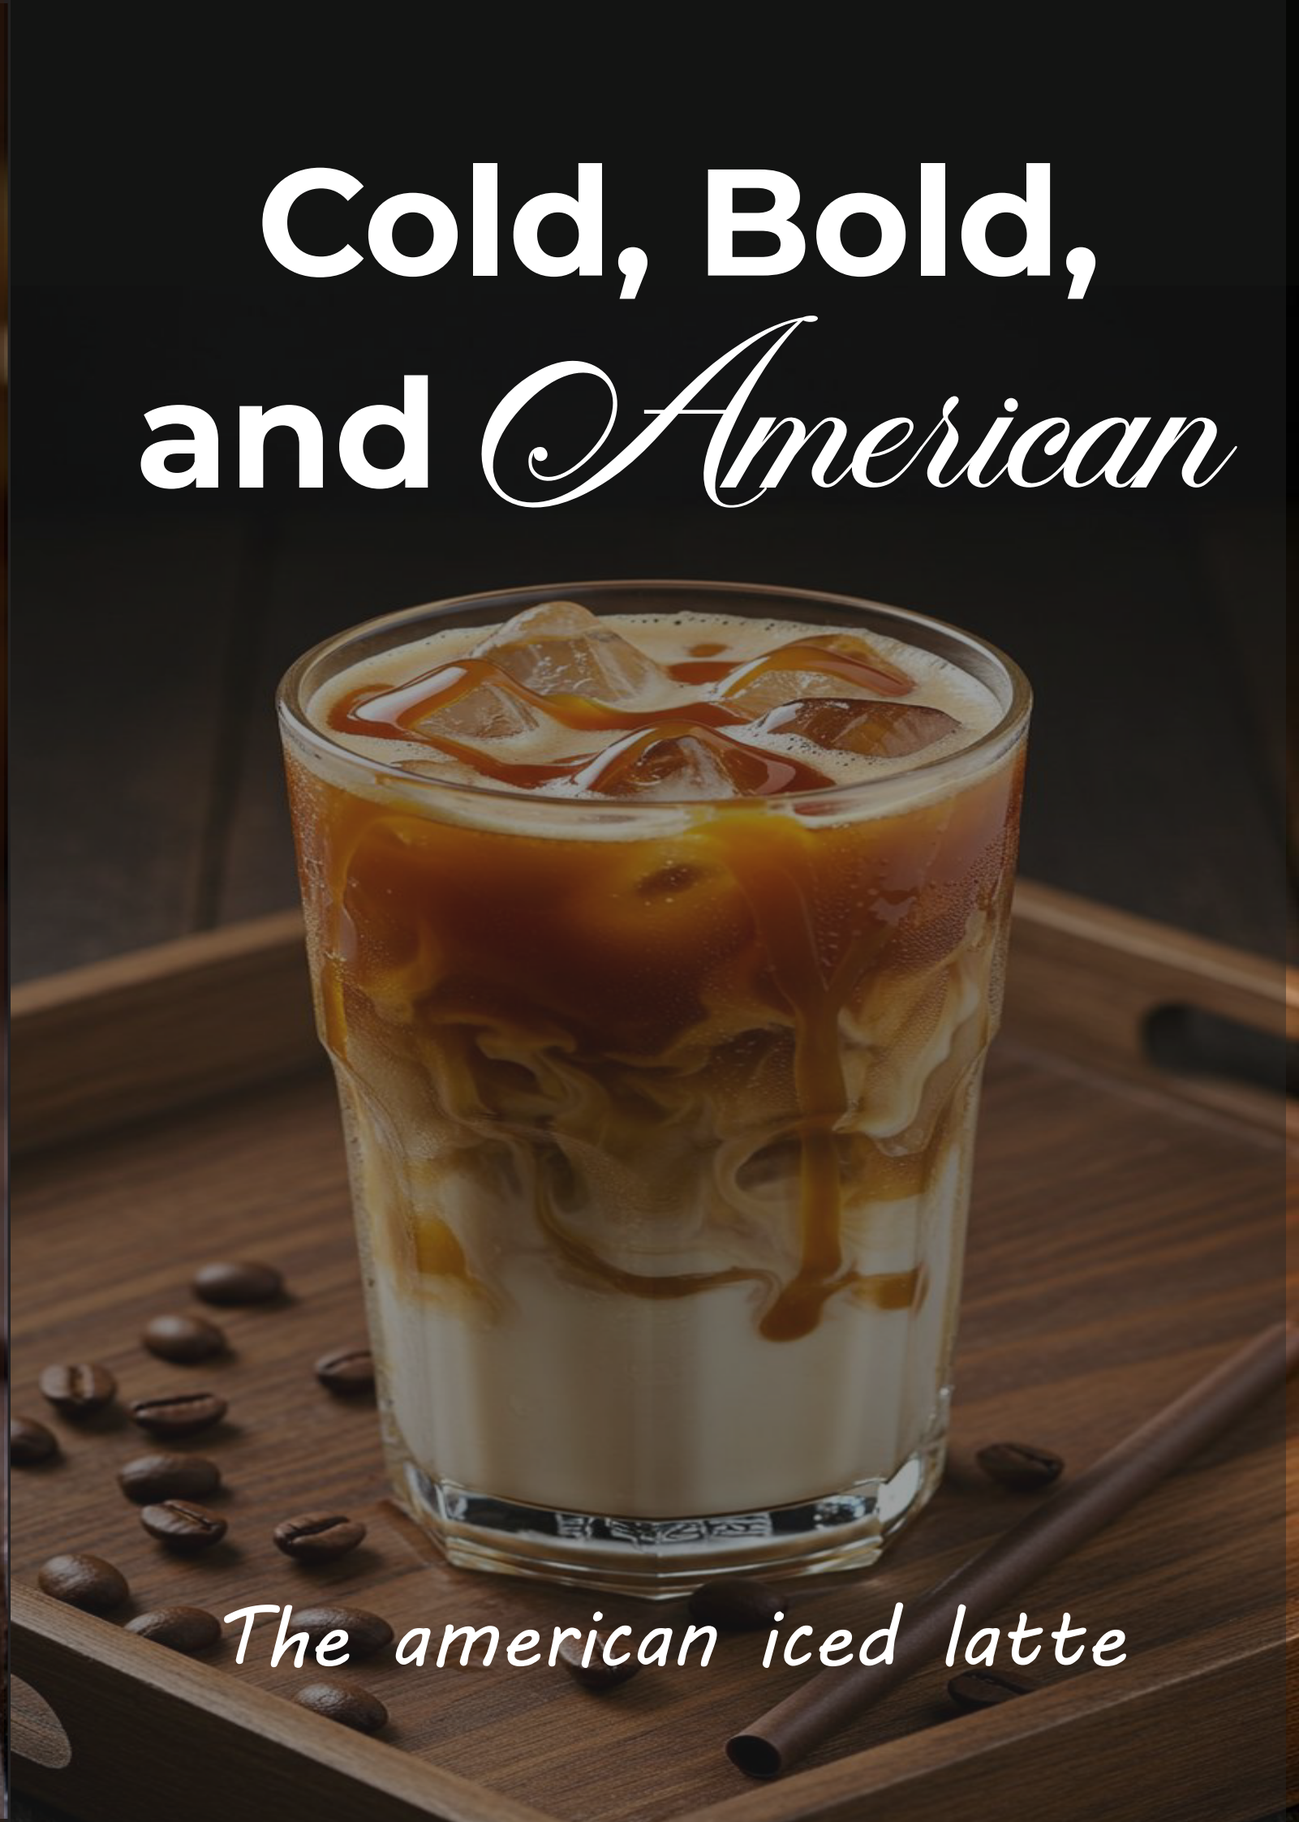

What started as a simple discovery has now become a global culture – a way to pause, share, and travel through stories over a single cup.

When you think of Chennai, you don't just think of Marina Beach, you think of the rich aroma of Filter Kaapi wafting from every home and café.

Brewed in the traditional dabara-tumbler set, Madras Filter Kaapi is made by slowly dripping hot water through freshly ground coffee powder mixed with chicory. The strong decoction is then blended with hot milk and sugar, and poured back and forth between two vessels until it forms a frothy, golden layer.

It's more than just a drink, it's an emotion. For generations, Filter Kaapi has been the symbol of hospitality in Tamil homes, the fuel for morning conversations, and the comfort of every roadside coffee stall.

Today, whether you sip it at a bustling Chennai café, a CCD outlet, or from a steel tumbler on a street corner, Madras Filter Kaapi remains a timeless icon of South India's love for coffee.

Did You Know?

- Filter Kaapi became popular in Tamil Nadu during the 19th century.
- The dabara-tumbler style isn't just for tradition — it actually helps cool the coffee and enhance the froth!
